

Bus307

Growing and Managing a Small Business

The overall objective of this course is to provide students with knowledge of the underlying principles and application of entrepreneurship and venture management. This will enable them to grow and manage a small business enterprise. Students learn to identify the traits of a successful entrepreneur and to develop business models based on marketing plans, pricing strategies, and financial objectives. Furthermore, they will be able to practice the skills of location analysis.